Scholarly Communications

Scholarly communication is the process by which researchers create, publish and share their findings with the academic community and the broader public. It includes traditional forms of publishing, but also the new and evolving systems of scholarship made possible in the digital age.

Our expert team is here to support UBC faculty and students through workshops, guides and one-to-one consultations on a range of scholarly communication issues outlined below.

OPEN ACCESS PUBLICATION

Tri-Agency Open Access Policy on Publications

“Grant recipients are required to ensure that any peer-reviewed journal publications arising from Agency-supported research are freely available within 12 months of publication.”

- Announced February 27, 2015, it is a harmonized CIHR, NSERC and SSHRC modelled on existing policies.
- CIHR – for research funded in whole or in part by CIHR, all grants awarded January 1, 2008 and onward.
- NSERC & SSHRC – for research funded in whole or in part by NSERC and SSHRC, this applies to all grants awarded May 1, 2015 and onward.

*CIHR also has data requirements
