Materials Pick-Up Service

NEW SERVICE – With the closure of UBC Library branches due to COVID-19, the Library has launched a Materials Pick-Up Service to provide access to its physical collection. For more information on UBC Library’s overall response to COVID-19 visit: https://services.library.ubc.ca/covid-19-response.

About The Materials Pick-Up Service

To support UBC faculty, students and staff during COVID-19, UBC Library is now offering a Materials Pick-Up Service to provide access to its physical collection. The service is not available to alumni and community borrowers at this time.

UBC students, faculty and staff can order up to 10 items per person per week. This includes scans of journal articles and book chapters adhering to Copyright Requirements for UBC Faculty and Staff.

Please see the Place an Order, Pick Up an Order and FAQ tabs for more details.

How a librarian can help

- Any time you have question about the library.
- I wonder if I’ve found everything? Have I found all of the important papers?
- Should I search somewhere else?
- What’s a good way to keep track of where I’ve searched?
- I found a reference to a paper in Google Scholar. Where can I get a copy?
- Where can I store and preserve my data?
- Is this a good journal to publish in?
- The library doesn’t have an important journal I need. Can you get it for me?
- Where can I find geospatial data?
